Call for Sponsored Symposia and Satellite sessions

This is the template for proposing Symposia and Satellite sessions for the World Congress of Epidemiology 2024 (www.wce2024.org). Given the scope of WCE, a wide range of proposals covering the various fields of epidemiology, public health and clinical science will be considered.

Symposia sessions are focused, structured discussions or presentations within the broader context of the WCE2024 theme. Symposia sessions are open to all registrants of the WCE.

Satellite sessions are organised by external groups or organisations to address topics or specialised interests that may not be covered in the main event's agenda. Satellite meetings are an excellent opportunity for groups with specific interests to convene and collaborate within the context of a larger gathering.

Symposia or Satellite are typically 60 or 120 minutes in duration; longer sessions can be scheduled through discussions with the conference secretariat. These sessions will be given appropriately sized meeting space within the conference venue with audiovisual and technical support as required.

Proposals will be considered on a rolling basis.
